

Weekend in Oregon with Lin and Janet Stutzman

November 18-20, 2005

Lin and Janet grew up in Oregon Mennonite congregations and have since served with Eastern Mennonite Missions in Germany and on the faculty of Eastern Mennonite University. They have led four cross-cultural semester study programs in the Middle East with EMU and this past year spent a 16-month sabbatical on their boat called "SailingActs" on the Mediterranean Sea visiting all of the ports and cities connected with the Apostle Paul mentioned in the book of Acts from Jerusalem to Rome.

Since 1993, Lin has been Associate Professor of Culture and Missions at EMU. His recent book projected for publication in 2006, Kingdom, Power and Glory: What Christians in Globalization Can Learn from Paul in the Roman Empire, examines Paul's faith and witness and implications for the American "global empire." Lin has written many essays on faith, missions and culture and served as a co-editor of recent books including: Meeting Muslims: a Calling for Presence in the Way of Christ; Practicing Truth: Confident Witness in our Pluralistic World; and Treasure in Clay Jars: Patterns in Missional Faithfulness.

Don't miss these opportunities to hear and engage with Janet and Lin in Oregon—their presentations will include extensive use of multi-media Power Point:

Following Paul's Incredible Journey of Change

From May, 2004 through August, 2005 Janet and Linford Stutzman lived aboard their sailboat "SailingActs" sailing the sea routes and retracing the land routes of Paul, visiting every site mentioned in the book of Acts connected with Paul. (Greece and islands of the Aegean, Turkey, Greek and Turkish Cyprus, Israel, Lebanon, Syria, Crete, Malta, Italy.)

The presentation shares the adventure of traveling with Paul, learning about and from the great apostle, discoveries into the story of Acts, and insights into our world, faith, and mission.
